Integration and Addition to Part I, Works by Arnold J. Toynbee

1965

155) The complete headline of Item 2418 (A.J. Toynbee, New Windows into History, in «Think», XXXI, 5, September-October 1965, pp. 2-5), reads «Technology is giving us new views of our past. The distinguished British historian describes how the tools of science and technology are adding a new dimension to our view of our past, and our future». «Think Magazine» was published by the IBM – International Business Machines Corporation.

Contents

Carbon-14 and Nuclear Detection (pp. 3-4)
Fictions and Realities (p. 4)
Namier's Parliament (pp. 4-5)
Race against Time (p. 5)
A New Dimension (p. 5)

156) Partially reprinted in John H. Trueman, The Anatomy of History, Toronto, J.M. Dent, 1967, Part 8, Does the Past change?, pp. 123-126.

According to the editor, «Arnold Toynbee here describes the impact of science and technology on the study of history. He is especially enthusiastic about the ways on which the historian will be able, by using the nuclear detector and the computer, to add a new dimension to our view of the past» (ivi, p. 123).
