Employability & Competences

innovative curricula for new professions

International Conference
University of Florence

Final Event of the Project PRIN2012LATR9N

The International Conference is the final event of the project PRIN2012LATR9N "to design innovative programs for higher education, to promote a personalized learning, to build on job competencies, to value talents, and to create new work-opportunities. Positive strategies in Higher Education to support young adults during their employment, as a response to the socio-economic crisis and as a citizenship action". It aims to present the results of the Employability & Competences (Emp&Co.) research along three main lines:

- the study of developments and changes in university students' subjectivity with in relation to their personal development (non-formal and informal contexts) and (formal) university education and training;
- the impact of university teaching, in the sense of the structure providing knowledge, practice, reflection and experience, for people to enter professional and life contexts and self-direct their formative process;
- the organizational dimensions and the university practices of placement, guidance and traineeship, in the conviction that altering the system context is one of the engines for change that can respond to the new requirements that the world of professions and work ask of young graduates.
